ITW RED HEAD RELOCATES
GENERAL OFFICE TO ADDISON, ILL.

New Office will Include Testing Lab, Training Center and R&D Facility

ITW Red Head, an Illinois Tool Works Construction Products company, has announced the company will relocate its general office from Wood Dale, Ill., to a larger facility in nearby Addison, Ill., to accommodate the company's continued growth. An early April move is planned.

The new general offices, located 25 miles west of Chicago, will include a comprehensive testing lab for certified evaluation of products, a professional training center for executive workshops and consultations, and a technologically advanced research and development facility dedicated to new product development. In addition, associates working in accounting and credit, sales and marketing, engineering and technical support, administration, and human resources, will work at the new facility.

"Our new general offices represent another milestone for ITW Red Head," said Mike O'Reilly, ITW Red Head general manager. "We're continuing to transform our company with a focus on continued, long-term growth, innovation in product development and value creation for our customers. The new general office is a fundamental element of this business strategy."
